

JOB DESCRIPTION

Vacancy Ref: A2730

Job Title:	Public Health Medicine, General Practice, Infectious Diseases	Present Grade: Clinical Pay Scale
Department/College:	Lancaster Medical School
Directly responsible to:	Head of Division
Supervisory responsibility for:	N/A
Other contacts
Internal: Department and Medical School colleagues and students, together with colleagues in other faculties, providers of student support services, the Library, ISS and central administration.
External: NHS (including Trusts, and HENW), professional bodies, research funding bodies and councils, academic and research networks.
Major Duties:
Academic duties:
1.A commitment to undertaking ‘cutting edge’ research which is commensurate with the research priorities of the relevant research groups within the Faculty. 2.Participation in post-doctoral academic training and research to enable the appointees to build individual research programmes and to establish skills as independent researchers. This will include seeking and exploring external funding opportunities. 3.Writing and publishing the results of original research in peer-reviewed, high impact journals of national/international standing. 4.Joint supervision of postgraduate students, as required. 5.Teaching duties as agreed in consultation with the nominated Academic Programme Lead or Institute Director taking into account the appointees’ workload in other areas and the need to gain this type of experience for purposes of personal academic development. 6.Administrative responsibilities as allocated by the Head of Lancaster Medical School, again taking into account the appointees’ workload in other areas and the need to gain this type of experience for purposes of personal academic development. Such duties may include:-•Participation in postgraduate student recruitment and selection activities.•Attendance at research group meetings and participation in other committees and working groups within the Division, Faculty and the University as required.•All new appointees are expected to undergo the formal induction programme and pursue a probation agreement in line with Lancaster University processes and to take part in other activities that will allow the postholders to develop full potential in research and teaching. Postholders will also have the opportunity to join the Faculty’s academic mentoring scheme to support their personal academic development needs.

Clinical duties:

- Where appropriate, the Clinical Lecturer will be appointed to the North West Region Training Programme in for the appropriate clinical specialty for the 50% clinical training element of the lectureship.
- The rotations, where appropriate, will be designed specifically for their clinical and academic needs. On call duties, where appropriate, will be determined according to the Clinical Lecturers' training needs and the clinical placements.
- The Clinical Lecturer will also be expected to provide support and clinical supervision of junior doctors, as appropriate.